

Dear colleagues!

The St. Petersburg School of Economics and Management, National Research University Higher School of Economics invites you to participate in “Leadership in Russia and Global Context” paper presentation session of Analytics for Management and Economics Conference.

Leadership is at the center of the success and failure of endeavors of organizations, reflecting and driven by societal culture to create and maintain organizational culture. Effects of culture on leader and follower opinions, attitudes, beliefs, and behaviors have long been a rich source of understanding of theory and practice in organizational theory and organizational behavior. In this stream of AMEC for this year scholars from different countries including Russia, Norway and Iceland will present their studies that deal with different types of leaders, leader values and behaviors and gender roles in leadership in Russian and global contexts, as well as a presentation of the paper dealing with research methods in leadership research, namely exploring response sets as a cross-cultural variable in large scale leader behavior studies. We kindly invite researchers, practitioners, and doctoral students to join our session on Wednesday, 23 September, at 16:00 (GMT+3).

The COVID-19 pandemic has made the changes to the usual conference format; this year conference will be held online via Zoom. Preliminary session schedule is available below. We kindly ask to register here.

To avoid and prevent any delays, participants should join the Zoom session at least 5 minutes prior to the session. Presenters should join the session at least 10 minutes prior to the session.

Presenters should prepare a PowerPoint presentation (to be sent to rlittrell@hse.ru by Wednesday, September 22nd at least 2 hours before the session) not longer than 20 minutes. The Session Chair will provide constructive feedback after each presentation in the duration of around 10 minutes.

If you have any questions or concerns, please, contact us at rlittrell@hse.ru or amec@hse.ru any time.
